

Taking action in the world

...by Josh Burrow

Step by step we the people of the Virginia Beach community can take charge, and inspire the people to make the right choices. My friends and I were going to the beach to invoke on a major quest to clean the beach. Turns out that the beach isn't too dirty we aren't the only one cleaning the crap off the beach. They pay people for that stuff but we found way to clean of those nasty tourists trash. This week just made my month helping random people out when they are in need. Like helping the old lady across the street bring in her bags, like wow your house smells like a giant cat. In my head I was like come here kitty but I didn't see any cats just litter boxes maybe her toilet is broken. But I have to say thanks to my wonderful teachers for making me in barking on a journey to do kindly things. I've always tried to do kindly things but I thought it was a great thing to make it into a project. These eleven days have been and mind stopper I feel like a new person when I see the smiles on their face when I come to help them and other things I have done for this project. There's not too much to talk about picking up trash and helping the old lady across the street with her bags but it's not just doing it because it's a project I took it as a monthly thing. I'm in barking on a channeled where I have to do a kindly deed every day just one a day to change how I treat people and hopefully help other people return the kindly deed and be nice to other people. The coolest thing would be to get the world to follow us and get everyone to do kindly deed like a chain reaction. Like that one commercial where one person sees another person helping someone out without asking then it starts a chain reaction but I think out community is so into their self's they wouldn't pay attention to other people and do what's right. Our community is so self-centered is not funny but projects like this might help this century of students like more of other people not just there self's. So far this is one of my favorite projects its not just to get a good grade its in way education the students to think of other people before them.
